ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method provide for the dispensing of a consumable product according to product information provided with the product. The system may include a 5   controller and an interface device configured to read a memory device included with the consumable product. Based on the product data read from the memory device the controller generates at least one control signal transmittable to a dispenser which in turn dispenses the consumable product in a desired manner.